One popular and effective NSRF protocol is Affinity Mapping. We’ve used it here and on the next page to demonstrate the difference between critics and Critical Friends Group collaborators.

For more information on the differences, consult the Self-Guided Tour to CFG Work or our Frequently Asked Questions page.
Participate and maybe win a prize!

An upcoming issue of Connections will feature articles and another protocol visualization on the topic of “Technology use in schools.” Please join us! Email luci@nsrfharmony.org with “the good, the bad, and the ugly” of tech use in your school. We’ll award a year’s membership to one lucky participant. If you’d like to write an article about technology (or another topic for a later issue), tell us. Authors we publish receive a membership.